CST 309: GLOBAL CITIZENSHIP

Section 1

Midterm

Summer 2026

Full Points:100 (20% of your grade)

Online Submission deadline: 11.59 PM, 25th July, 2026 (via turnitin)

Paper copy to be submitted by 4.00 PM, 26th July, 2026 (To your TA)

(PAY ATTENTION TO ALL THE DEADLINES AND THE INSTRUCTIONS)

Read the instructions (first and last page) and the prompt carefully before starting to write the assignment. You have a week to work on this so please manage your time well. This is a formal take home examination so I expect you to submit work that is properly formatted and edited. Please cite any and all sources you use and use the proper citation method. Only credible sources are acceptable. Wikipedia, blogs, Youtube videos, etc are not considered to be credible sources. Plagiarism will not be accepted. Intext Citations and a reference page is required. If AI content is detected the script will be progressively marked down and if it's over 50% the paper will automatically be given a zero.

This is an individual assignment so DO NOT SHARE YOUR ANSWER WITH ANY OTHER STUDENT- Keep the Plagiarism percentage in Turnitin under 10 percent. DO NOT use AI to generate your answers or correct them.

DO NOT wait till the last minute to start the assignment.

1. Follow the APA citation format (take help from your TA if necessary.) Failure to follow the proper citation format will result in deduction of marks
2. Do not write the prompts in your answer script. Just mention the essay topic.
3. No additional time of submission will be provided.
4. Your TA will be able to help you with structuring the essays, formatting and citations. Do not ask her to help you with research or content.

Total points- 100.

Word Limit- 1500-2000 words

Please remember you will have to write an ANALYTICAL essay. Note that you will have to craft the essay with a clear thesis statement in the introduction.

Use ALL the parts of the prompt you choose to structure a comprehensive essay. You may add other points but only after you have covered what is asked. This essay should have an introduction, different body paragraphs with subheadings for the different arguments/claims and a conclusion.

Please use clear subheadings, make your claims clear and provide detailed evidence that support your claims.

Remember the more you demonstrate your understanding of concepts, breadth of readings, ability to synthesize and make connections, include specific examples from what you have read for class and discussed in class and are able to apply these concepts and ideas to your case study, the stronger your essay will be.

Please make sure that all the sources are either academic or journalistic articles/reports from reputable sources. Use of encyclopedias, wikipedia, reels, social media posts from non peer reviewed sources should be strictly avoided. Use of the assigned readings is essential for concepts and debates. Assessment for citations and bibliography include assessment of your ability to choose valid sources for academic papers.

There will be an individual VIVA held on the 29th and 30th of July, 2026. The schedule will be as per the sign up sheet that will be shared on google classroom after class on Sunday(19/07/26). Please pay attention to the time and date you sign up for. If you miss the viva for any reason other than documented health reasons you will not be given the chance to make up for it.

Prompt

The central thesis in your paper will be regarding the idea of ‘ Contested Citiznships’. In crafting this essay you will do a case-study analysis of how the concept of citizenship is contested and complicated with regard to the population that your group has chosen for the midterm. You will have to look at the challenges to and privileges of citizenship that the community (that you are working on) experiences. In this analysis you should consider the different aspects and types of citizenship that is/has been available to the population. Also consider the following: Think about the institution of citizenship in terms of territorial/social/ascribed/naturalized/passive/active and so on (I have only given you a couple of examples; this list is not exhaustive). Can you apply ideas like state of exception/ The camp/ bare life in an analysis of citizenship for this community? How? What kinds of contradictions do you notice in terms of their democratic rights, rights to insurrection, right to have rights, internal borders and codified citizenship. Discuss the process of exclusion and inclusion that is inherent in any understanding of formation of citizenship and national identity. Think about ‘constituent power’ and ‘constituted power’. Do their national identities conflict with their ethnic identities? What does that mean for their citizenship? Consider what and how narratives are created about this group and about the hegemonic national identity through these processes of contested citizenship.

You will have to include all the above considerations in your essay but you are not limited to these points alone. The essay should not be just a series of answers to the different parts of the prompts. Use the different parts to structure a comprehensive essay where the arguments and paragraphs have a logical flow. Since this is a case study analysis make sure you describe the case. Make sure your thesis statement is strong and you expand on it in the introduction. Choose an appropriate title for your essay.

While you are working on the same case as your group members you will not be working together for this paper. Please check google classrooms and the excel spreadsheet with the reading groups if you do not know which group you are in and what case the group has chosen. Ask me/Adiba if you are still unable to find it.
